Article 3 - Application, supply and order of precedence

1. These terms apply to consumer agreements to which AZGS declares them applicable before or when the Agreement is concluded. They do not apply where the Client acts in the course of a profession or business.
2. AZGS supplies the applicable version before or when the Agreement is concluded, on paper or electronically in a way that allows the Client to store and consult the text later. Merely referring to a web page does not replace such supply where the law requires information on a durable medium.
3. If provisions conflict, project-specific terms in the quotation or Agreement accepted by the parties take precedence over these terms. A provision detrimental to the Client does not apply where mandatory consumer law prohibits it.
4. If a provision is unclear, the reasonable interpretation most favourable to the consumer applies. A provision that is void or annulled does not affect the remaining provisions.

Article 4 - Quotation, information and formation

1. Unless it states otherwise, a quotation is valid for fourteen days. Obvious writing, calculation or measurement errors do not bind AZGS where the Client should reasonably have understood that an error had been made.
2. The quotation states at least the agreed work, relevant assumptions and exclusions, the price or calculation method, VAT, any additional costs, payment stages and intended schedule insofar as these can be determined at that time.
3. An Agreement is formed by acceptance of the quotation, signature of an agreement, or when AZGS starts performance at the Client's express request. An acceptance that changes the quotation binds AZGS only after AZGS accepts that change.
4. For a distance or off-premises agreement, AZGS provides the information required by law before the Agreement is concluded and a confirmation on a durable medium afterwards. The contact form on this website is for making an enquiry only and does not itself conclude an Agreement.
5. Insofar as the Agreement concerns construction of a new home for a private Client, AZGS supplies before conclusion, in writing and unambiguously, the legally required information about whether the relevant risks have financial cover and, if cover exists, the characteristics required by law. This clause does not confirm any insurance, guarantee or warranty; the project-specific information is decisive.

Article 5 - Withdrawal period for distance or off-premises agreements

1. Where the law grants a right of withdrawal, the Client may withdraw from the Agreement within fourteen days without giving a reason. For a service, that period starts on the day after the Agreement is concluded. AZGS supplies the legally required information about exercising this right.
2. The Client may withdraw by any unequivocal statement to AZGS, for example by email or by using the model form in Annex A. If the Client withdraws through an online function, AZGS promptly confirms receipt on a durable medium.
3. AZGS starts during the withdrawal period only at the Client's express request. If the Client then withdraws, the Client owes only a proportionate amount for performance up to the time of withdrawal, provided the statutory information and consent requirements have been met.
4. The right of withdrawal for a fully performed service ends only if performance began with the Client's prior express consent and the Client acknowledged that the right would end after full performance, insofar as the law permits.
5. For a visit specifically requested by the Client for urgent repairs or maintenance, the statutory exception from the right of withdrawal applies only to the urgently requested work. Additional services or goods not necessary for that urgent work do not automatically fall within the exception.
6. Insofar as the special statutory regime for construction of a home for a consumer applies, the statutory written-form requirement and three-day reflection period also apply. This is separate from any right of withdrawal for a distance or off-premises agreement.

Article 6 - Price, invoicing and payment

1. Consumer prices include VAT and other mandatory levies unless expressly and lawfully stated otherwise. Additional costs that cannot be calculated in advance are explained before the Agreement is concluded or determined according to the agreed calculation method.
2. A fixed price applies to the stated scope and assumptions. If an estimated price rather than a fixed price is agreed, the statutory rules for a contract for work apply, including the statutory limit and duty to warn when the estimate will be exceeded.
3. Advance payments, stage invoices and a final invoice apply only insofar as stated in the quotation or Agreement and permitted by law.
4. Invoices are payable within fourteen days of the invoice date unless another reasonable period is agreed in Writing. A substantive objection should be raised promptly; statutory rights of suspension or set-off remain available.
5. If payment is late, AZGS charges statutory interest and extrajudicial collection costs to a consumer only after the legally required free payment reminder has been correctly sent and its payment period has expired. Collection costs will not exceed the statutory maximum.

Article 7 - Scope and performance of the Work

1. The Agreement determines which work, materials, preparation, finishing and completion documents are included. Work not stated is included only where this follows from the nature and purpose of the Agreement or from the law.
2. AZGS performs the Work in accordance with the Agreement, good workmanship and the legal requirements directly applicable to the Work.
3. AZGS may have parts performed under its responsibility by employees, suppliers or subcontractors. This does not reduce AZGS's responsibility for proper performance.
4. A functionally equivalent material or product is used only after timely information to the Client and, where the change affects agreed characteristics, appearance or price, after the Client's consent.

Article 8 - Client duties and AZGS's duty to warn

1. The Client supplies in good time the information and decisions reasonably needed by AZGS and provides agreed access to the work site, provided that it is safely accessible.
2. The Client reports known circumstances that may affect the Work, such as concealed pipes, asbestos or other hazardous substances, earlier damage and third-party work. This does not release AZGS from its own duties to investigate and warn.

3. AZGS warns about inaccuracies in the assignment and known or reasonably discoverable defects or unsuitability of items, land, plans, drawings, calculations or instructions supplied by the Client.
4. For a contract concerning a constructed work (bouwwerk), a warning is given in Writing, unequivocally and in good time, and states the possible consequences for proper performance. These requirements are not varied to the detriment of a consumer.
5. AZGS may stop the affected Work in an unsafe situation. AZGS informs the Client as soon as possible about the reason, necessary measures and foreseeable price and scheduling consequences.

Article 9 - Schedule and delay

1. A starting or completion date is a strict deadline only where the Agreement or the law expressly makes it so. Other dates are a schedule that AZGS will use due care to follow.
2. AZGS reports a material delay as soon as possible and, where reasonably possible, explains the cause, consequences and adjusted schedule.
3. Delay caused by a circumstance attributable to the Client may lead to a reasonable schedule adjustment and demonstrable costs after AZGS has informed the Client in good time.
4. The Client's statutory rights in the event of late or defective performance remain applicable.

Article 10 - Changes, additional work and cost-increasing circumstances

1. A change to the Work is recorded in Writing in advance wherever possible, including its effects on price and schedule.
2. For additions or changes requested by the Client, AZGS gives timely notice of the need for a price increase unless the Client should have understood that need without notice. This statutory protection is not varied to the Client's detriment.
3. For an estimated price, cost-increasing circumstances or incorrect information, the statutory warning, consultation and pricing rules for contracts for work apply. Where required by law, AZGS allows the Client to limit or simplify the Work or terminate the Agreement.
4. Urgent work reasonably required immediately to limit damage or danger is reported and itemised as soon as possible. This gives AZGS no broader right to payment than follows from the law and the specific assignment.

Article 11 - Completion and completion dossier

1. AZGS notifies the Client when the Work is ready for completion. The Client has a reasonable opportunity to inspect and accept the Work, with or without reservations, or refuse it while identifying defects.
2. The Work is deemed completed according to the statutory rules for contracts for work. Use of the Work is a relevant circumstance but does not remove the Client's statutory rights.
3. Discovered defects and remaining points should preferably be recorded in a completion list. Minor defects that do not prevent use will be repaired within a reasonable period and are not in themselves grounds to refuse completion.
4. For a contract concerning a constructed work (bouwwerk), when notifying that the Work is ready AZGS supplies the dossier required by law unless the parties have made a legally valid different agreement. The dossier enables the Client to verify whether AZGS fulfilled its obligations and contains the drawings, calculations and information about materials, installations, use and maintenance required by law.
5. Insofar as special statutory provisions apply to construction of a new home for a consumer, including provisions on financial information or the 5% retention arrangement, they remain fully applicable.

Article 12 - Defects, duty to complain and repair

1. The Client reports a discovered defect within a reasonable time after discovering it or after the Client reasonably should have discovered it. An email with photographs and a description helps prompt assessment, but a statutory notice is not subject to stricter formal requirements than the law permits.
2. For a contract concerning a constructed work (bouwwerk), AZGS is liable for defects not discovered at completion unless those defects cannot be attributed to AZGS. Section 7:758(4) of the Dutch Civil Code is not varied to the detriment of the consumer.

3. In principle, the Client gives AZGS a reasonable opportunity to investigate and, if AZGS is responsible, repair a defect within a reasonable period. This does not apply where it cannot reasonably be required of the Client, for example in a demonstrable emergency.
4. A complaint suspends payment only insofar as the law permits and the amount withheld is reasonably proportionate to the alleged failure.
5. Statutory complaint, expiry and limitation periods remain applicable. These terms do not impose a shorter expiry period on consumers.

Article 13 - Warranty and liability

1. AZGS is responsible for performing the Agreement and is liable according to applicable law. These terms do not limit any liability or right that cannot lawfully be limited against a consumer.
2. An additional commercial warranty applies only where expressly included in the quotation, Agreement or a warranty statement. It does not affect statutory rights.
3. Manufacturer or supplier warranties are passed on insofar as they are transferable. Such a warranty does not limit AZGS's own statutory responsibility.
4. AZGS is not liable for damage or defects that cannot be attributed to it, for example normal wear, improper use, insufficient maintenance, third-party work or a Client decision against which AZGS warned correctly and in good time. Statutory rules on evidence and attribution are decisive.
5. The Client takes reasonable measures to prevent further damage and informs AZGS of a loss event as soon as possible.

Article 14 - Force majeure

1. Force majeure is a circumstance that prevents performance and that cannot be attributed to AZGS under the law. Suspension is justified only by a specific causal effect of that circumstance.
2. AZGS informs the Client as soon as possible, limits the consequences where reasonable and resumes performance when possible.
3. If performance becomes permanently impossible or the delay justifies termination, the parties may exercise their statutory rights. Work already properly performed is settled insofar as the law creates a payment obligation.

Article 15 - Emergency work

1. For an emergency report, AZGS assesses by telephone or on site which immediate measures are possible and responsible. Availability does not guarantee an arrival or repair time.
2. Call-out charges, hourly rates, surcharges and material prices are communicated as clearly as possible before the assignment. If a total price cannot be determined in advance, AZGS explains the calculation method.
3. An exception from the statutory right of withdrawal applies only to the visit specifically requested by the Client and the necessary urgent repair or maintenance. Non-urgent follow-up work is agreed separately.
4. If AZGS cannot resolve the danger safely or within its agreed scope, it may take or advise emergency measures and refer the Client to the competent emergency service, network operator or specialist.

Article 16 - Termination, cancellation and ending the Agreement

1. The statutory right of withdrawal in Article 5 is separate from termination or cancellation outside the withdrawal period.
2. For a contract for work, the Client may terminate the Agreement in whole or in part at any time. The financial settlement follows Section 7:764 of the Dutch Civil Code: the price for the entire Work less the savings resulting for AZGS from termination, or the statutory calculation method for work charged on a time-and-materials basis.
3. At the Client's request, AZGS itemises the relevant performance, commitments and savings. Materials already ordered are made available to the Client insofar as they are charged and can be transferred.
4. For other services or appointments, only reasonable cancellation costs disclosed in advance may apply, reflecting the demonstrable consequences of cancellation.
5. Rescission for breach follows the law. Where performance remains possible, the party in breach is first given a reasonable cure period unless the law does not require one.

Article 17 - Complaints, disputes, law and language

1. A complaint may be submitted to info@azgs.nl or by post to the address in Article 2. AZGS acknowledges the complaint and seeks a substantive solution within a reasonable period.
2. If consultation does not resolve the matter, the Client may submit the dispute to the court competent under the law. These terms do not limit the consumer's statutory choice of forum.
3. Dutch law applies to the Agreement. Mandatory protection available to the Client under applicable international consumer law remains in effect.
4. The Dutch text is the authentic and legally controlling version. This English translation is for information only; if interpretations differ, the Dutch text prevails.

Article 18 - Amendments and final provision

1. The version supplied to the Client before or when the Agreement was concluded applies to that Agreement.
2. AZGS may amend these terms for future agreements. A change to an existing Agreement applies only if the parties agree it validly; publishing a new version on the website is not sufficient.
3. If a provision is void or annulled, the remaining provisions continue to apply. Applicable law governs in place of the invalid provision; the parties may make a valid replacement agreement that takes the consumer's interests into account.
